The Power of Paderewski.

A hard headed business man went to hear Paderewski play, says A. E. Thomas in Success Magazine. The man is not a musician. He spends his days trying to buy cotton when it is low and sell it when it is high. This is how he described his experience at the piano recital.

"You know, I'm not easily stirred up, and I don't know anything about music. I wouldn't know whether a man was playing the piano extremely well or just fairly well. But I do know that Paderewski played one thing that afternoon that stirred me up as I never was stirred in my life. I don't remember what it was. I couldn't have told whether he was playing an hour or five minutes. All I know is that it stirred up feelings within me I had never felt before. Great waves of emotion swept over me. I wanted to shout and I wanted to cry, and when the last chord was struck I found myself on my feet waving my umbrella and shouting like a wild Indian. I went out of that hall as weak as a rag and happier than I'd been in years. I can't account for it. I've tried, but I can't explain it. Can you?"

Burglar's Besetting Sin.

The burglar's besetting sin is heedlessness. The chances are that it was heedlessness that first drove him out of honest employment and made a burglar of him. The burglar ransacks a house and carries away a spoon holder, a card tray or some other inexpensive souvenir of the occasion, and he overlooks the thousand dollar bill on the dining room table and the rope of pearls on the towel rack. This heedlessness seems to be common to the whole fraternity. We do not know what the experience of other cities is, but in Newark the burglar leaves an astonishing amount of portable wealth behind him invariably. When he reads on the day after the robbery that he took Mrs. De Stile's chafing dish and ignored her $500 ruby bracelet beside it or that he upset the Pompleys dresser drawer to get the revolver and failed to see the government bonds that lay in plain sight on the washstand, how he much gnash his teeth and hate himself for neglecting to develop his powers of attention and observation in his youth!—Newark News.

What "Garbler" Once Meant.

"Garble," "garbled," "garbler," are words which nowadays convey quite a different meaning from that which was formerly accepted. "Garble" originally signified simply "to select for a purpose." At one time there was an officer, termed "the garbler of spices," whose duty it was to visit the shops and examine the spices, ordering the destruction of all impure goods. His duties were similar to those of the inspector of the modern health department, who forbids the sale of decayed vegetables or tainted meat. The word comes from a root meaning "to sift." The impurities sifted out have in the course of generations corrupted the term till a "garbled report" is no longer a report wherefrom all uncertainty has been removed but one that is full of misrepresentation and made misleading with deliberate intent.

Mississippi Steamboating.

The steamboat age on the Mississippi began about 1821 and flourished for fifty years. As early as 1834 the number of steamboats on the Mississippi and its tributaries is estimated at 230, and in 1842 there were 450 vessels, with a value of $25,000,000. But the golden era was from 1848 till the war. Never did the valley and steamboating prosper more than then. Thousands of bales of cotton were annually shipped to southern markets, and the wharfs of St. Louis and Memphis and Vicksburg and other large ports were stacked with piles of merchandise and lined with scores of steamers.—Travel Magazine.

Corrected.

It is the custom of a well known minister to point his sermons with either "dearly beloved brethren" or "now, my brothers." One day a lady member of his congregation took exception to this.

"Why do you always preach to the gentlemen and never to the ladies?" she asked.

"My dear lady," said the beaming vicar, "one embraces the other."

"But not in the church!" was the instant reply.

The Cruel Reason.

Mrs. Gossip—How does it come that Mrs. Newrich invited you to her party? I thought you were enemies. Mrs. Sharp—We are, but she thought I had nothing fit to wear and wanted to make me feel bad.

So Foolish.

"She is neglecting her game of bridge dreadfully."

"Why is she doing that?"

"Some silly excuse. Says the children need her. I believe"—Pittsburg Post.

An Ancient Custom.

"I wonder if men have always complained about the food their wives prepared for them," said one woman.

"I guess so," replied the other. "Adam started it."—Washington Star.

The New Cook.

Wifey—This pudding is a sample of the new cook's work. What do you think of it? Hub—I'd call it mediocre. Wifey—No, dear; it's tapioca.—Boston Transcript.

Disguised.

Customer—I'm going to a masked ball, and I want something that will completely disguise me.

Costumer—Certainly, sir. I will give you something nice. Pele Mele.

A Surgeon's Story

He Saw the First Part of a Drama and Was an Actor In the Second Part.

By BEVERLY WORTHINGTON.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

I am a surgeon, and my home is in Florence, Italy. When a young man I studied at a college of physicians and surgeons in my native country, America, but, possessing a taste for art, concluded to change my profession. Coming here to Florence, I studied art for awhile, but soon saw that I did not possess the talent necessary to make an artist. Having fallen in love with this delightful city, I remained, hanging out my shingle as a surgeon.

One night I attended a ball at the Pitti palace. It was my first appearance among the aristocracy of Florence, and I was much interested in watching the people there, few of whom I had ever seen. A young girl with a gentleman attendant on each side of her walked by me. The appearance of the three told a story. The man on her left was young, handsome, in every way attractive. He on her right was past middle age and disagreeable looking as the other was engaging. As they passed me he gave the younger man a malignant look. The girl appeared to be much troubled. It was plain that her heart was with the man on her left, that she was constrained to choose the man on her right and that the two men hated each other on her account.

"Everywhere," I remarked to myself, "the stream of life is troubled. To be rich, to be prominent, does not render one immune from that which is disagreeable. Happy love has evidently come to this young girl, to be interfered with by one who, judging from her expression, has some claim upon her. How I should like to know the story!"

As I thought the last words I little dreamed that within a few hours a climax would come in the drama being enacted by these three persons and that I would come upon the stage for a minor part. When I left the palace I went directly to my rooms and to bed. An hour later I was awakened from a sound sleep by a violent knocking. I arose, slipped on a gown and opened the door. Two gentlemen in evening dress stepped into the room.

"You are the American surgeon, I believe?" said one.

"At your service," I replied.

"You are wanted to attend a man dangerously wounded," said the other. "You are chosen partly on account of your standing in your profession, but principally because you are not one of our circle. We do not like our affairs to be known. I must ask you to permit me to blindfold you."

I objected to this, but one of the men put his hand to his hip pocket and drew forth a small pistol with mother-of-pearl mountings, while the other produced a stiletto. I picked up my bag of instruments and suffered them to tie a handkerchief about my eyes. They led me out to the sidewalk, told me to raise my foot, and I stepped into a carriage.

"Drive a roundabout way," I heard one of the gentlemen say.

"No," interposed the other. "He may bleed to death. We must go as quickly as possible."

There was no need to make turns; for I had no idea where they were taking me. In what I supposed to be ten minutes the carriage stopped. I was helped out and soon by the increased warmth of the air felt myself to be in a building. Then I mounted steps, and at last the bandage was taken off my eyes. I was standing beside a bed on which lay—mirabile dictu—the young man I had seen walking on the left of the girl at the Pitti.

I knew too well the danger of showing any sign of recognition.

"Senore Dottori," he said with a feeble voice, "I have been stabbed on the left side—here," uncovering. "It is near the heart."

It was near the heart, but had fortunately just escaped that organ. After an examination I assured the patient that if he kept perfectly quiet till the wound should heal he would recover. But I thought that, considering its close proximity to a vital organ, a surgeon should remain with him until a healing should be established.

"Then," said one of the men who had brought me, "you must remain. We do not care that two surgeons should be introduced here just now."

"But my practice—my patients?"

"All damages to your practice shall be liberally paid for."

I made a virtue of necessity and assented.

Meanwhile I had bandaged the cut and when I had finished turned and looked about me. I was in one of those old palaces, as they are called in Florence, belonging to some influential family. The furniture, at least some of it, must have been several hundred years old. The bed on which the wounded man lay was canopied. On the walls were paintings, some of which I recognized as masterpieces of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. There was no one in the room except the two men who brought me and the patient. I directed that a large lounge of antique pattern should be made comfortable for me to sleep on, as it would be best for me to be very near the patient. Then the men who had brought me left, one of them first saying to me:

"Senore Dottori, we are very glad to hear you say that the patient has so good a chance for his life. When you leave here be discreet and all will be well with you, but if you talk—well, all I have to say is you will not talk very long."

I remained a week at the palace, the name of which I did not know. Indeed, I was not permitted to leave the room of the patient, my meals all being served there. My mail was brought me, and it was amusing for the first day or two to read the messages of my patients with reference to my sudden disappearance. Then I asked those who had kidnaped me to leave word at my apartments that I had been called to Sienna on a very important case. This had the effect to quiet those who sought me.

My patient turned out to be as engaging a man as I had deemed him to be when he passed me in the Pitti palace.

"Your effort," I said to him one day, "to keep your drama—it came very near being a tragedy—from me would possibly have been successful had it not been that I was at the ball at the Petti palace the night you were stabbed. I saw you pass me with the man who stabbed you and the lady for whom you were stabbed. So you see it would be safer for you to tell me the whole story, since I have a part of it, I pledging myself to secrecy, rather than to permit me to go away with what I already have undpledged."

He was not only very much astonished, but saw the reasonableness of what I said.

"I did not notice you," he replied, "at the ball and supposed that you had no position in court society. An Italian surgeon would have been unavailable for us. We are all so interlaced socially, those below constantly watching those above and all watching one another, that we dare not trust any one of our own number. You, as an American, are not mixed in our jealousies, our disputes, our"—

"Assassinations."

"You are wrong there. There are no assassinations in modern Italy. I fought with the Duke—But I will tell you the story and have every confidence that you will not reveal it.

"I am Count Baradini, and my ancestors have lived in this palace since the twelfth century. The man you saw on the other side of the senorina at the ball was the Duke of Abolino, a relative of the king. The senorina herself is the daughter of the Countess Francoccio, an old family that sprang up under the influence of Lorenzo de' Medici, commonly called Lorenzo the Magnificent. Senorina Bianca Francoccio and myself have been lovers ever since I was sixteen and she fourteen years old. Upon her entrance into society lately on her eighteenth birthday the duke saw her and became desirous of possessing her. He is a widower, very rich and has great influence with the king. Soon after seeing Senorina Bianca he made a formal application for her hand. Her mother—her father is dead—urged her to accept what is to be considered in a worldly point of view a better position than I could give her. To be a duchess and rich is higher in the worldly scale than to be a countess and with no possessions except this old palace. As for Bianca, her heart is all mine, as mine is hers, and if left to her own will she would refuse the duke to marry me. Indeed, rather than wed with him she declares she will go into a convent.

"The duke was expecting to have his own way in the matter when at the recent ball at the Pitti he discovered that I was his rival. I was with Senorina Bianca a few minutes before we passed you, when the duke joined her and by a look bade me give way to him. I asked the lady to go with me into another apartment. She assented, whereupon the duke went with us. On reaching the other room Bianca showed the duke so plainly that his presence was not desirable that he left us, giving me a malignant look as he did so that plainly meant 'I am a man of too much importance to be interfered with by such as you.'

"On leaving the palace the duke, who took ocasion to go out at the same time as I, jostled me. Seeing that I must have it out with him, I sent him a challenge.

"Just at present the king would be furious if he knew that members of the nobility to whom he looks for support, especially his relative, had fought a duel. If I were known to have sent a challenge to the Duke of Abolino I should in some way be made to suffer. I met him within an hour after we left the Petti; but, realizing my position, I did not dare even pink him. He came very near killing me, as you see, and I doubt not will be disappointed if I recover.

"The duke and my second joined in conference as to how to keep the matter a secret and decided to call upon you to attend me.

"There you have the story so far as it has been enacted."

The balance of the tale I learned from Count Baradini after he had recovered. Senorina Bianca was commanded by her mother to marry the duke, and the king sent a message to say that he would be pleased at a match between her and his well beloved cousin. Despite these commands and requests the girl flatly refused to marry any one but the man she loved and when those who were conspiring against her found it impossible to move her they desisted, and finally her mother gave a reluctant consent that she should marry the count.

When the wedding came off I was present and had a pleasant chat with the bride about her husband's wounding, of which she had been kept in ignorance till the affair had blown over.

League Bosses Chilled In Congress Campaign

THE effort of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League to capture at least a representation in the California congressional delegation has practically been abandoned. The league bosses have been busy for some time in the various congressional districts, hoping that the absence of the state's representatives in Washington might be worked to advantage of a conspiracy to nominate a set of demagogues.

The scheme, however, has fallen flat. It is true that the incumbent congressmen have neglected their political interests in their various districts, but they have done so in an effort to promote California's interests, particularly in relation to the world's fair. This sort of neglect is the kind that wins votes rather than loses them and the league bosses have discovered it to their cost.

Wherever they have gone, seeking to work up a sentiment in opposition to present congressmen, they have received a chilling reception. This is particularly the case in the Second district where William Kent is spending a considerable sum of money seeking to defeat Duncan McKinlay for the Republican nomination. McKinlay has been at his post in Washington and has not even commenced the circulation of his petition for renomination.

During his absence Kent has sent agents from this city into the district. They have been amply supplied with funds and they have taken the customary course to obtain a certain newspaper support. Petitions for Kent's nomination are in circulation in every county of the district and nothing is being left undone to show voters that the glorious cause of insurrection is lavishly equipped with coin. Even this extravagant campaign has not made an impression. Some of the advance agents of Kent are sorely in need of the cash and their friends sympathize with their opinion that free circulation of the medium of exchange is always healthy.

McKinlay will be home in a few days and will have plenty of time in which to prepare and file his petition for renomination. His record in Congress will do the rest. Those who are thoroughly informed on the situation in the Second district predict that McKinlay will win the nomination easily and will carry the nomination practically by default.

In the Fourth district the situation is essentially the same. Kahn will have no opponent for the Republican nomination and will have a walk-over in November.

The Lincoln-Roosevelt League in this city is having a serious time in squaring its pretentions with the various aliases under which it has chosen to do business in San Francisco. Wherever it is known as the Lincoln-Roosevelt League people recall its offenses of back room, secret politics, its manipulation of the Barbary Coast vote, its attempt to corrupt the police department and the machinery of public justice. Whenever voters refer to the Lincoln-Roosevelt League of this city the gigantic fraud of the postage stamp spy primary is revived.

That outrage upon voters cost Spreckels and his fellows $10,000 and won them nothing but contempt. So the Lincoln-Roosevelt League is a poor name with which to conjure votes in San Francisco.

Then "Independent Republicans" was used to cover the political sins of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, but men remember the Olivers and the Creightons, the riffraff of the underworld and the parasites of the white way.

As an alias for the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, the designation of Independent Republicans calls to memory the election crimes which were committed to make Francis J. Heney a nominee. The hounding of police officials, the bargains with petty criminals and the compacts with crooked characters are incidents too fresh in public memory in their association with the "Independent Republicans." Then "insurgents" was seized as a new alias for an old offender, and as it made the movement rediculously offensive, it was dropped. Now it is "progressives," but the name hides the old gang and speaks eloquently of the Ritters and the Dalzell Browns, the purchased prosecutors and the conspiracies to save criminals from the consequences of their crimes.

Politicians believe that the disgust which has followed the progress of the league in this city accounts for the significent fact that Johnson is practically making his campaign alone in the state. He has press agents and advance riders, but no speech-makers with him. Both Works and Wallace tried the game for a while, but both fell by the wayside. Wallace tried to modify the intemperance utterances of Johnson, but Works was even worse than Hiram, and the combination went to pieces.—S. F. Post, June 28.

Spring Water Versus Water-Shed Water

The Spring Valley Water Co. of San Francisco, realizing the absolute necessity of preserving the purity of the water served to the people of the metropolis, uses every means to protect from contamination its entire vast watershed. Its lands are devoid of cattle pastures, corrals, pig-pens, barnyard and other sources of pollution, the maintainance of which, anywhere within such an area, would inevitable result in pollution, and consequent disease to the consumers.

Unquestionably, however, the purest and most wholesome water is that derived from springs, the sources of which are deep, subternean channels, far removed from catchment drainage.

Such a spring is "Lachryma Montis," which translated from the Latin signifies Weeping Mountain or Mountain Tear.

This magnificent spring, filtering through the primordial strata of mother earth, gushes forth in virgin abundance at the base of the mountain side, and is conveyed in all its purity and health-giving qualities direct to the people of Sonoma. The spring, "Lachryma Montis," was discovered and named by General M. G. Vallejo, the founder of Sonoma City and the preserver of the State. *

Women's Secrets

There is one man in the United States who has perhaps heard more women's secrets than any other man or woman in the country. These secrets are not secrets of guilt or shame, but the secrets of suffering, and they have been confided to Dr. R. V. Pierce in the hope and expectation of advice and help. That few of these women have been disappointed in their expectations is proved by the fact that ninety-eight per cent. of all women treated by Dr. Pierce have been absolutely and altogether cured. Such a record would be remarkable if the cases treated were numbered by hundreds only. But when that record applies to the treatment of more than half-a-million women, in a practice of over 40 years, it is phenomenal, and entitles Dr. Pierce to the gratitude accorded him by women, as the first of specialists in the treatment of women's diseases.

Every sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, absolutely without charge. All replies are mailed, sealed in perfectly plain envelopes, without any printing or advertising whatever, upon them. Write without fear as without fee, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Prest., Buffalo, N. Y.

Nothing was saved as both himself and wife were absent when the fire broke out.

THE CARNIVAL OF NATIONS WILL BE GREAT EVENT

Preparations for the Big Parade and Other Features of the Four Days Fiesta Being Made on a Grand Scale

The past week has been a strenuous one for the members of the Woman's Club and the citizens of Sonoma in general in their efforts to make the Carnival of Nations at this place on July 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th a spectacular event and one long to be remembered as the greatest ever.

Twelve attractive booths, representing as many nations, have been set up and grouped in Sonoma's historical Plaza and remind one of a minature city. These booths will be presided over by leading club women, each of whom will be assisted by a bevy of young girls, who will serve various kinds of refreshments to visitors.

The great fiesta opened up last night on the Plaza which was brilliantly illuminated with incandescent electric lights, under most auspicious circumstances.

Today (Saturday) there will be a trades parade, confetti battle and dancing on a large platform erected in the Plaza especially for the occasion.

A sacred concert in the Plaza by the Sonoma Valley Band will be the principal feature Sunday.

On Monday, July 4th, there will be a magnificent street parade, which will form at the Northwestern Pacific depot at 10 o'clock in the morning. Positions in the parade will be allotted by the Marshal and his aids. A number of cash prizes will be awarded to the participants in the parade as follows:

Floats	$10.00
Decorated Autos	5.00
Decorated Double Rigs	5.00
Best Special Feature	5.00
Best Advertising Feature	5.00
Best Entry Made by a Booth	5.00
Best Single Buggy	2.50
Best Equestrian	2.50
Best Bicycle	2.50

After the parade literary exercises will be held in the Plaza, the orator of the day being Benj. Weed, ex-principal of the Sonoma Valley High School, who put the school on the accredited list and kept it there during his principalship of several years. The exercises will be as follows: Music, Sonoma Valley Band; introductory remarks, President of the Day, Mayor M. E. Cummings; invocation, Rev. Father Comerford; reading Declaration of Independence, Regan Talbot; patriotic song, Miss Helena Clewe; oration, Benj. Weed; "Star Spangled Banner," Sonoma Valley Band.

The literary exercises will be followed by the race meet of the Sonoma Valley Driving Club, which will take place on its half-mile track in the extreme southwestern limits of town.

The four days fiesta will be brought to a close with a grand ball in Union Hall on the evening of the Fourth, which will be given under the auspices of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club.

Jeffries-Johnson Battle

The great prize fight between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson to take place on July 4th in Reno will be announced by rounds at the Bellevue Hotel, El Verano, on the afternoon of the Fourth. Landlord Benjamin has perfected arrangements by wire to announce every phrase of the battle between the pugilistic giants as it progresses from start to finish.

Deer Season Opens July 15

The deer season opens on July 15th and local hunters anticipate fine sport this season in the mountains west and north of town, as a number of deer have been seen within two or three miles of town.

Kicked By a Horse

Henry Jason, employed on the old Johannsen ranch, was kicked by a horse last Thursday afternoon and had his face terribly mutilated. The man's nose was crushed in and one side of the face cut wide open by the hoofs of the animal. The injured man was brought to town and taken to Leix's sanitarium for treatment. At latest accounts he was in a fair way to recover.

Married in Healdsburg

Frederick M. Cummings, who recently came here from Healdsburg as local manager for the Northwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company, was married in that city last Wednesday to Miss Florence Wright, a sister of County Clerk Fred L. Wright. The young couple, after a brief honeymoon, will make their home here.

The Fair Etta Is in Japan

The principal witness against Dr. Burke of Santa Rosa, Lou Etta Smith, who disappeared some time ago, has been located in Japan. The woman no doubt was spirited away by the defense to prevent her testifying against the doctor, District Attorney Lea, however, has a strong case without the woman's testimony, and is confident of convicting the accused, who is out on bonds pending his trial in the Superior Court of this county.

Pure Food Law in Santa Rosa

Two of our local restaurant keepers, says the Press-Democrat, have been hauled into court recently by C. F. Hoyt, a State Inspector, working under the State Board of Health in enforcing the pure food laws. The particular offense charged against the local offenders was selling adulterated milk. The milk sold had been skimmed and the cream sold for other purposes instead of being mixed with the milk being sold. In this way the butter fat did not meet with the requirements of the law. The offenses were committed in ignorance of the law as well as the result of the action of employes unbeknown to the proprietors and as yet the matter has not resulted in fines. The cases are being held by Justice Atchinson pending developments. The minimum fine is $25 for each offense with a maximum of $200. It behooves all proprietors to take necessary steps to protect themselves.

Skipped

A number of local merchants and others are mourning the sudden disappearance of a former resident of this place who recently departed for parts unknown leaving sundry bills behind. A search is being made for the offender and if he is located there will be something doing.

Baseball Notes

The El Verano base ball team went down to defeat before the Sonoma nine last Sunday. Score 16 to 15. Heavy hitting at opportune times by the locals, who rolled up a total of sixteen base hits, won the game.

WINE MEN GAIN GREAT VICTORY

Court Removes Federal Restrictions Regarding Interstate Shipment of Goods

Federal restrictions which for more than a year have hampered to a considerable extent the California wine trade in other states were swept away by a decision of the United States circuit court at Windsor, Vt., Wednesday. Local wine men are jubilant, declaring that the decision is one of the most important steps taken in favor of the grape and wine industry for many years.

By it the various federal restrictions tending to discourage the shipment of wine from one state to another will be applied no longer. The case was brought about by the confiscation by a United States marshal of three car-loads of California wine at Barre, Vt., which had been shipped from San Francisco by the Ciocca-Lombardi wine company of this city.

The confiscation was based on a section of the crimes act, by which a heavy fine was imposed on those who shipped alcoholic goods to another state and consigned them to a distributing agent, the purpose being to force the wine dealers to ship in broken lots to the actual individual purchasers, which was impossible under the freight rates charged. With the law in force wine shipments to other states dropped more than 50 per cent. Ultimately the local concern decided to make a test case and shipped three loaded cars, consigning the goods to itself and then informing a drawing company to distribute the goods according to the private markings on the cases. The confiscation followed and the case was taken to the federal courts.

"We consider this one of the most sweeping victories for the wine and grape industries that we have been able to achieve for many years," said B. F. Lamborn, secretary of the Allied Grape Growers and Wine Industries of California. "The decision will mean the reviving of the California wine industry."—Call.

THE DRIVING CLUB NAMES COMMITTEES

Its Meet Here on the Fourth Will Eclipse all Former Efforts to Bring Together Speedy Horses

At a meeting of the Sonoma Valley Driving Club, held last Tuesday evening, the following committees were appointed for the great race meet here on Monday, July 4th.

Program—Jos. Ryan, George Breitenbach and M. E. Cummings.

Gate—Fred Poulson, Jas. H. Albertson, Jep. Valente and W. Poulson.

Refreshments—Ernest Campbell and W. Werner.

J. Millerick was appointed Marshal of the Day and Geo. Carpenter will have charge of the mounted police on the race track.

J. Watt was selected as entry clerk.

Louis Parente's name was presented for membership and accepted.

Jas. H. Albertson, who has charge of financing the race meet, reported that our citizens were contributing liberally for the purses, etc.

It came out at the meeting that the entry of speedy horses for the races here on the Fourth will eclipse all former entries. Many turfmen from abroad will attend the races.

Hay is Gradually Tumbling Downward

The tremendous hay crop all over the State the present season has brought down the price of hay with a tumble. Somers & Co., in their weekly report ending the 28th inst., say among other things:

"There has been some diminution in hay shipments during the week ending today, the total showing but 2970 ton as compared with 3590 ton for the seven days preceding. There has been some little difficulty in securing cars, which fact has probably prevented the market from showing a materially lower range of prices, for as the Fourth of July approaches trade seems to become more quiet and it is the general opinion that trade will become more dull until we are over the holiday season.

"Consumers, who are always bearish, are being very generally joined by all the hay dealers and brokers, so that the general feeling in San Francisco is that present prices cannot be advanced for many months to come, and that if any change comes it will be for the worst.

"A careful study of the situation in the country seems to show that the new crop combined with the carrying stock will give us much more hay than we will need during the year for all ordinary demands. A dry season, a severe winter which may necessitate the consumption of extraordinary quantities of hay, or a strong demand that may spring up from outside State or country will, of course, materially affect our market. From what we have in view, however, there is little to encourage us in looking for good prices for hay for the balance of the season."

Prices vary from $13 for choice wheat hay to $5 for wild oat hay.

HE WON THE CROWN.

The Ancient Story of the "Bloody Hand of Ulster."

The emblem of the Ulster steamship line is a huge red hand, from the wrist of which is flowing drops of blood. An official of one of the vessels of the line gave this explanation of the queer device:

"It was in the early days of Ireland, when James I. was king and when Ireland was divided into four provinces, that the king of Ulster died. He had two sons, who were devoted to each other and who at the time of their father's death were on the isle of Aaron, Scotland. In those days the eldest son did not always succeed the father on the throne.

"They were brave lads, these two sons of the old king, and upon learning of the death of their father each planned to race across the channel and be the first to place his hand upon the soil of Antrim and thus become king of all the north.

"With eight men each they started off from Mullcantry. On nearing the shores of the isles the youngest prince, whose name was Neill, seeing that his brother was in a fair way to become king, drew his sword, placed his left hand on the side of the boat and cut it off at the wrist.

"Quickly seizing the dripping hand, he threw it on shore and thus won the crown. Since that time, it is told, the bloody hand of Ulster has led to victory on many a hard fought field as emblem on the shields of the young king and his followers. Ulster's name, whether in trade or war or sport or on a steamship line, is known by this sign."—Philadelphia North American.

PROVED HIS WORDS.

Still, the Philosopher Didn't Like It When Death Called.

A certain philosopher was in the habit of saying whenever he heard that an old friend had passed away: "Ah, well, death comes to us all! It is no new thing. It is what we must expect. Pass me the butter, my dear. Yes, death comes to all, and my friend's time had come."

Now, Death overheard these philosophical remarks at different times, and one day he showed himself to the philosopher.

"I am Death," said he simply.

"Go away!" said the man in a panic. "I am not ready for you."

"Yes, but it is one of your favorite truisms that Death comes to all, and I am but proving your words."

"Go away! You are dreadful!"

"No more dreadful than I always am. But why have you changed so? You have never feared the death that has come to your friends. I never heard you sigh when I carried off your old companions. You have always said, 'It is the way of all flesh.' Shall I make an exception in favor of your flesh?"

"Yes, for I am not ready."

"But I am. Your time has come. Do not repine. Your friends will go on buttering their toast. They will take it as philosophically as you have taken every other death."

And the philosopher and Death departed on a long journey together.—Charles Battell Loomis.

About Sneezing.

Hospital nurses when assisting at a delicate operation have their own way of suppressing a cough or a sneeze. The operator's attention must not be distracted for a moment. Coughs and sneezes, too, spread germs on surfaces carefully rendered antiseptic. So every nurse soon learns to press her finger hard on the upper lip immediately below the nose when she feels a cough or a sneeze coming on. A pressure in the neighborhood of the ear, too, or a hard pressure on the roof of the mouth will nip a cough in the bud. And the will has great power to control a cough or a sneeze.

There was a French surgeon who used to say whenever he entered the wards of the hospital, "The first patient who coughs gets no food today." This method was usually successful.—Chicago News.

What Came Up.

A young man wishing to have a bit of fun at a farmer's expense passed a few remarks about his cattle and his garden and then said he had set some lettuce and cabbage which had not grown up.

Then the farmer said:

"Oh, that's nothing! I set some carrot seeds, and what do you think came up?"

"Don't know," replied the young man.

Farmer—Why, old Brown's donkey, and ate the lot.—Newark Star.

The Turnip.

The turnip is supposed to be a native of Asia and Europe. It has been cultivated for centuries. The wild East Indian turnip is said to be remotely kin to the edible turnip. It is the size of a walnut and first tasted is sweetish, but in a moment the taster's tongue feels as though it were pricked by a hundred hot needles, and he feels like expectorating for hours after. It is the country boy's favorite medium for a joke on the visiting town boy.

Work and Worry.

"So you think worry kills more people than work?"

"I'm sure of it," replied the sarcastic scientist.

"Why?"

"Because so many people find it easier than work and devote their time to it."—Washington Star.

For who knows most, him loss of time most grieves.—Dante.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a costitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

We have answered this cry in our new book "Fighting the Traffic in Young Girls" by Earnest A. Bell, U. S. District Attorney Sims and others. It tells how thousands of young girls are lured from their homes annually and sold into a life of shame. The Cincinnatti Inquirer says "Of all the books of the season the War on the White Slave Trade is the most helpful; it should be read by every man, woman and child."
